Application No.: 09/843,145 Docket No.: 300014343-1 US (1509-179)

REMARKS

The Office Action of January 25, 2006 has been carefully studied.

To provide Applicants with the protection to which they are deemed entitled, claim 33 has been added. Claim 33 depends on claim 22, but requires the advertisement broker device to include limitations included in independent claim 20.

Applicants traverse the rejection of claims 20-22, 25, 26 and 32 as being anticipated by Rautila et al., U.S. Patent 6,549,625. The rejection of these claims only discusses features of claims 20 and 26. As such, the rejection fails to set forth rationale as to why independent claim 22 is anticipated by Rautila et al. The rejection with regard to claim 20 is defective because it includes an allegation that database 26 of Rautila et al. acts as an advertisement broker device. The rejection of claim 20 is also improper because the relied on portion of Rautila et al. does not disclose the feature of the server including database 26 being adapted to validate a user to ensure that no telecommunication address of an advertiser or replier to an advertisement is passed with the message that is transmitted by the server.

Concerning the first issue, that the server including database 26 does not act as an advertisement broker device, the server including database 26 is in a system wherein the user of mobile terminal 12 makes purchases from location based device or specialized service 25 or vending machine 27". The purchase is in response to information transmitted by device 25 and/or vending machine 27" being sent by these devices to broadcast location 16 via shortwave transmissions 27". Broadcast location 16 transmits the information to the user of mobile terminal 12 via shortwave link 24. Mobile terminal 12 transmits information back to broadcast location 16 via link 24. The information indicates the user of the terminal is willing to purchase the goods or services being offered for sale by device or service provider 25 or vending machine 27".

Broadcast location 16 responds to such request for purchase by sending a request for authorization signal to the IP network including database 26 via link 27. The IP network including database 26 responds to the request for authorization by sending back to broadcast location 16 an indication of whether or not authorization is approved and sends a similar signal to mobile terminal 12 via link 42. Links 27 and 42 are long distance, in contrast to the short distance links that exist inside the confines of the boundary 18.

As such, the IP network including database 26 cannot be considered an advertisement broker device, as required by both of claims 20 and 22. The word "broker" is defined, as a noun, as:

1. One that acts as an agent for others, as in negotiating contracts, purchases or sales in return for a fee or commission; 2. A stock broker; 3. A power broker.

See The American Heritage Dictionary of the English Language, 3rd Edition, 1992, page 242, copy enclosed as Exhibit A. The only applicable definition is definition "1". However, definition "1" requires a broker to be an agent for others, as in negotiating contracts, purchases or sales. The IP network including database 26 cannot be considered as such an agent. This is because the IP network including database 26 merely acts as an authorizing facility, rather than an agent. Consequently, neither claim 20 nor claim 22 is anticipated by Rautila et al.

The Office Action alleges column 9, lines 15-20 and column 10, lines 1-8 of Rautila et al. indicate the server including database 26 is adapted to ensure, at least initially, that no telecommunications address of an advertiser or replier to an advertisement is passed with the message that is transmitted by the server. Applicants are unable to find any basis in the relied upon portions of Rautila et al. for the conclusion in the Office Action. Column 9, lines 15-20 of Rautila et al. states:

Application No.: 09/843,145

Docket No.: 300014343-1 US (1509-179)

...This enables the user of each mobile terminal 12, when multiple short range position transceivers 14 are used, to pick and choose from the information which his most interesting which is being broadcast from a plurality of information sources at the broadcast location 16.

Based on the foregoing, the foregoing limitation of claim 20 is not found in column 9, lines 15-20. Column 10, lines 1-8 indicates the server in the IP network including database 26 checks the signature, decrypts transmission of information from mobile device 12, and determines if a time stamp is valid. If all of this information is verified, the server within the IP network including database 26 concludes with a high probability that the user of the mobile terminal is an authorized user and provides the user of the mobile terminal with access to the network. Again, it is not seen where the foregoing portion of Rautila et al. has anything to do with preventing the telecommunication address of an advertiser or replier to an advertiser from being passed with the message that is transmitted by a server. Explanation is in order of how the server including database 26 provides the foregoing limitations..

Claims 21 and 32 are dependent on claim 20, and are allowable therewith, and claim 25 depends on claim 22, and is allowable therewith.

The rejection of claims 1-5, 7-14, 27-31 and 33 as being unpatentable over Rautila et al. in view of Scheer, U.S. Patent Publication 2002/0161674, is patently incorrect. The Scheer et al. application was filed May 29, 2001. The present application was filed April 27, 2001. Thus, the present application filing date antedates the Scheer et al. filing date, and the Scheer et al. published application is not a proper reference against any claims of the present application.

Application No.: 09/843,145 Docket No.: 300014343-1 US (1509-179)

In view of the foregoing amendments and remarks, favorable reconsideration and allowance is respectfully requested and deemed in order.

To the extent necessary, a petition for an extension of time under 37 C.F.R. 1.136 is hereby made. Please charge any shortage in fees due in connection with the filing of this paper, including extension of time fees, to Deposit Account 08-2025, and please credit any excess fees to such deposit account.

To arrange or manage as a broker broker an agreement among opposing factions. [Middle English, from Anglo-Norman brocour, abrocour; possibly akin to Spanish alboroque, ceremonial gift at conclusion of business deal.)

WORD HISTORY: Giving gifts to one's broker might be justifiable from an etymological point of view because the word broker may be connected through its Anglo-Norman source brocour, abrocour, with Spanish alboroque, meaning "ceremony or ceremonial gift after the conclusion of a business deal." If this connection does exist, "business deal is the notion shared by the Spanish and Anglo-Norman words because brocour referred to the middleman in transactions. The English word broker is first found in Middle English in 1355, several centuries before we find instances of its familiar compounds paunbroker, first recorded in 1687, and stockbroker, first recorded in 1706.
